285	MDA	Multinational Ballistic Missile Defense Conference and Exhibition	9/10/2012	9/12/2012	3	Berlin		Germany	$353,313	45	460	The 3-day conference is Missile Defense Agency's most important annual international outreach event and addresses the full spectrum of missile defense policies, technologies, and issues. It includes participants from allied partners, reflecting both the growing, worldwide ballistic missile threat and the increased role of missile defense as an accepted element of national and regional security strategies. In addition to the formal program of speeches and technical sessions, MDA organizes bilateral meetings with senior international counterparts to discuss and advance key initiatives. These meetings include MDA and other senior USG representatives to advance a 'whole of government' message. There is no other comparable opportunity to concretely advance as many relationships/engagements in such a short, compact time, both at senior leader and working levels and on bilateral and multilateral bases. As such, the conference is a critical enabler for MDA to strengthen international cooperation, consistent with the 2010 Ballistic Missile Defense Review.	N/A
